Reading between the wines

Tuscany is without doubt one of those wine regions that give some of the most important reds in the world. It is a region full of tradition, known for its beautiful landscapes, its rich artistic legacy and vast influence on high culture - and wine. The term "Super Tuscan" describes any Tuscan red wine that does not adhere to traditional blending laws for the region. For example, Chianti Classico wines are made from a blend of grapes with Sangiovese as the dominant variety in the blend. Super Tuscans often use other grapes, especially cabernet sauvignon, making them ineligible for DOCG (Denominazione di Origine Controllata e Garantita) classification under the traditional rules.

For this exhibition we have curated one red wine from this region. Visitors are invited to enjoy, discuss and drink.
